Agricultural Charm — or Civilized Primitivism?

Chester Duncan takes a look at Country Music programs on CBC-TV (Originally broadcast on "Critically Speaking")

BEING a Western boy myself, and very musical, I've always been mystified as to why Western Music (country style) isn't more attractive to me. As a matter of fact, for a long time Western Music seemed to me to be the second worst type of music, the worst being Hawaiian music.

Thank goodness there doesn't seem to be a Hawaiian program countenanced by the CBC*. Western or Country Music, however, is quite generously acknowledged, and its purpose is plain: to play wholesomely on folk possibilities, or the illusion of them, and persuade us all to be boys again.

The question for me is whether country hoedowns in broadcasting are indeed genuine folk, and not just some sentimental or commercial nonsense which we can all play at, even those of us who evidently never were boys—or never knew country matters. One is struck, for example, by the fact that so much Western Music is fed to the networks by those who are clearly and strenuously Eastern.

There are two television network programs which are nourished by this artificial fountain of everlasting youth and enthusiasm: Country Hoedown on Fridays and Don Messer's Jubilee on Mondays. Don Messer's Jubilee is probably the more unusual and authentic since around it hovers the genuine spirit of amateurism. I can't think of any musicians or singers today in television who look less like professionals—and there's a certain advantage in that: They present an entertainment from an era before electricity in guitars. The musicians are not in costume; they allow themselves a little something in period ties, but the rest of the clothing is just their badly-fitting Monday best, and they just stand around and play, not even smiling much, which, after the dental displays on all other musicals, is quite a relief.

The playing on Don Messer's Jubilee I think would never be described as slick, and sometimes it's simple and clumsy in a comforting kind of way. After the dazzling spectacles, on other programs, of perpetually smiling robots on accordions, guitars, or pianos, it's a satisfying thing to see the back of a robust pianist with just an ordinary haircut. There are square dancers on Don Messer's program, but of a quality specially designed not to make any common-or-garden square dancers among the viewers jealous, or irritated at what is often a glamorous falsification of the sport. These dancers are modest, unsophisticated, and pleasantly old-fashioned.

And speaking of charming quaintness, one cannot but be intrigued by the wholly unexpected appearance and attitude of the solo singers. There is here absolutely no attempt made to conceal the physical proportions or nice homeliness of the stars, or to take the rough edges off character by makeup. Marg Osburne sings the awful old ballads with touching sincerity and she has a ravishing smile, though her constant crinkled merriment is

Some of the possible paths that can be taken by a transmitted signal in passing through space.

YOUR TV ANTENNA

Several readers have written CBC Times, requesting advice on how to attain better television reception by improving their antenna systems. The following discussion of the subject has been prepared by a CBC engineer

1. Purpose

The function of the antenna is to present a receiver with one of the thousands of signals that are in the air, and to do this in the most efficient manner.

Thus it follows that perhaps an antenna should be "tuned" not only to certain stations (in much the same way as a receiver is tuned), but also made to concentrate on signals from specific directions. In fringe areas where the signal is weak it would seem desirable if the antenna could also "boost" or amplify the available signal.

2. Location

Wavelength is a very important factor in the transmission of signals by radio or television stations. This determines largely how the atmosphere, the earth, and the moisture present in both may affect transmission and reception. At broadcast radio frequencies part of the signal passes through the earth, and part through space relatively close to the earth. As frequencies go up to the television range and beyond, the waves take on more and more of the properties of light, gradually confining all transmission to that through space only. As this happens it becomes increasingly desirable to obtain line-of-sight between transmitter and receiver antennas. The earth's atmosphere will bend these waves a considerable amount to allow good reception somewhat beyond the horizon, but the higher a receiving antenna is placed, the better the signal strength obtainable (see Figure 1).

It is usually true that a building made of a dry, non-conducting material such as seasoned lumber, is transparent to radio and television signals, but lakes, rivers, trees, and metal objects such as fences and power lines can all provide reflected signals which may affect reception. These reflections can sometimes be the entire source of signal to the antenna, but usually their presence, together with the normal signal, results in a loss of signal strength or causes a "ghost" on a TV receiver. Often both effects are experienced.

Because of such considerations, a good deal of both judgment and trial and error are involved in choosing the final location of an antenna. Having some appreciation of what happens, or can happen, to the signal before it reaches the antenna, let us reconsider the antenna itself and decide how best to make it work most efficiently.

In strong signal areas of both radio and television stations a great deal of signal can be wasted without too many defects showing up in reception. In areas where the signal is weaker, however, care must be taken to use every bit of it to advantage. But even in places near powerful radio and television stations, outdoor antennas are sometimes necessary for good reception because of the added noise caused by our increasing use of electrical appliances.

Without doubt, the most important aspect of any antenna is its location. During the initial installation, several possible places should be tried. Keeping in mind the practical and economic factors involved, an attempt should be made to achieve (a) a minimum amount of "ghost" images, and (b) the blackest "blacks" possible in the picture (indicating maximum signal). Almost any antenna which will provide a useable signal may be used for conducting this test.

3. Type of Antenna

After having found the best location for the antenna, the next step is to choose the best antenna for the job to be done. Usually, but not always, the best type of antenna will turn out to be the most expensive one. Every location and installation presents its own peculiar problems, and what may work well in one case may not work best in another.

The usual type of outdoor antenna is a Yagi (see Figure 2), named after its inventor. It usually takes the shape of a centre pole with horizontal bars, or "elements" fastened to it at right angles. One or more of these elements is "driven" and supplies the signal to the receiver. The other elements of the antenna serve to direct the signal to the "driver" element(s). The net effect of this arrangement is not only to provide a directional effect, but also to "boost" or amplify the signal that exists in space so that the receiver will be presented with a signal perhaps two or three times as strong as the "space signal."

This type of antenna must be pointed in the direction of maximum signal; its inherent design is such that it is "tuned" to a particular television channel; and it provides amplification. Thus it would seem to satisfy the requirements stated earlier.

The Yagi antenna does have its faults, though, and one of the most important of these is that after some period of use the antenna itself can generate noise, and this can progressively degrade the picture quality. If this is to be avoided, the centre of every element must make good electrical contact with the centre rod, and the centre rod must make good electrical contact with the earth. (This is required not only for proper functioning of the elements, but also to provide a "drain" for static charges that build up with wind and precipitation and to afford protection against lightning. At the time of installation all contact points should be coated with a protective spray of paint or clear plastic to slow down the corrosion of these contact surfaces.

Another disadvantage of the Yagi antenna is its extreme sensitivity to any conducting or reflecting material that may be located at the sides of it. Wire lath on a stucco house, foil insulation, wires, and trees all have a pronounced effect on its performance. These factors disturb both the directivity and the gain of this antenna and are usually the source of "ghosts" which appear in the picture.

How many elements must an antenna have? A qualified serviceman is perhaps the best person to decide this, in view of the many factors which must be taken into consideration. As a rough rule-of-thumb, however, in a primary or Class A service area of a station "rabbit ears" (a one-element antenna) or a two-element antenna is usually all that is required. In a secondary or Class B area, usually from two to five elements are called for. In a "fringe" area five- to ten-element antennas are required, sometimes with several antennas "stacked" and connected together. (The "stacking" of antennas to

A Typical Five-Element Yagi Antenna

CHARLES WINTERS has been to Europe once. He would like to go again but radio commitments tie him to Toronto. Rod Coneybeare plans going to Britain this summer for the first time: "I've never been anywhere," he told us.

Wanderlust seems strange in these two young men. For over the past few months they have:

- shrunk (by electronic techniques invented by themselves) to the size where they could crawl round inside a light bulb, radio tube, pocket watch, and take a bath in an electric kettle;

- been to a barbers' school, interviewed one of the few blacksmiths left round Toronto, and travelled in the same day to 40 feet below the streets in Toronto's sewers and to 400 feet above Toronto in a helicopter;

- travelled backward in a time machine ("Whenever Charles drives, something goes wrong and we land where we didn't plan to land," said Rod);

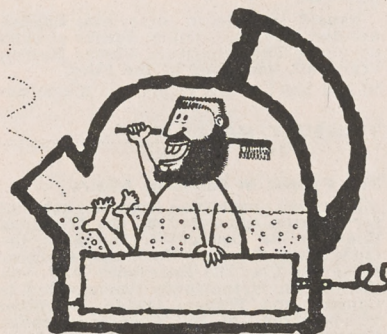

- studied in their natural habitat the weasel, snake, skunk, and bee. "That last turned into a tragedy," said Rod. "The poor old Queen got murdered." More often it is either Rod or Charles that nearly get murdered. And let's face it: Charles is a bit of a haywire character on Children's Magazine. Rod is more stable.

"Mind you," said Charles, trying to be fair, "Rod can be a bit of a nut too. One time he hypnotized me and almost let my brain's thermostat control freeze me to death." He nodded sadly, "he's not all kindly genius."

CBC Trans-Canada listeners hear Children's Magazine on Sundays—at noon in Manitoba, 11 a.m. in Saskatchewan and Alberta. The two segments done by Rod and Charles typify the blend of fact and fancy pervading the whole hour-long program.

About the sketches involving science and fantasy, Rod says: "We can't really explain much in 15 minutes, so we like to take one central idea and wrap it up in a simple but humorous package."

About the animal sketches, Charles says: "Animal portraits like this must have an element of mysticism. I think children respond to the mystical note."

As for the actualities, "we like to go places where a child would like to go but can't—mainly because he is a child," said Rod.

Rod and Charles first collaborated on The Saturday Show last year. Their method of writing is to get together with ideas, discuss them, divide them up fifty-fifty, and then each go separately and write his share. A natural sympathy results in sketches whose individual authorship even their friends cannot guess.

Both men have the elusive knack of writing for children without talking down to them. "We don't pretend we are children because actually we are 80 years old," said Rod. "Sometimes we are accused of being too adult, but children are more intelligent than many people give them credit for."

"Do you mind if I read you something from a book called The Sword and the Stone?" asked Charles, settling back anyway and reading:

"The Wart did not know what Merlyn was talking about but he liked him to talk anyway," read Charles. "He did not like grown-ups who talked down to him like a baby, but the ones who just went on talking in their usual way, leaving him to leap along in their wake, jumping at meanings, guessing,

A Helpful Guide To Wise Buying

KIN HUBBARD, American newspaper humorist, once said: "It makes no difference what it is, a woman will buy anything she thinks a store is losing money on." While CBC Times hasn't the courage to back or refute this statement, Margaret Pope has. She is a tall, slender blonde with blue eyes who is making a career out of consumer research. She maintains that women are far from gullible about buying, and they're getting sharper every day. Rich or poor, they want the most for their money, and they are prepared to shop around until they find it—unless, of course, they discover a short-cut to satisfaction, and that's where Mrs. Pope comes in.

Instead of sampling all the gourmet coffees and ending up with a deflated food budget and half-packages of several unsatisfactory brands, or listening to sales talk and getting stuck with a steam iron that does not live up to its advertising claims, housewives are invited to take four minutes off each weekday to hear Margaret Pope's report on what's new and worthwhile on the market. She started February 1 on CBC radio's For Consumers, keeping listeners posted on the good and bad points of new household appliances, textiles, food, child and beauty care, safety, nutrition.

Mrs. Pope is no stranger to daytime listeners. For four years she has been a regular panelist in the Trans-Canada Matinee quiz on Tuesdays, in which, she says, "I have to answer all the questions from listeners which the other panelists don't. Reading the dozens of letters that come in from across the country asking for advice on this and that has given me a pretty broad picture of what the Canadian householder wants to know about, and I'm using this knowledge as a yardstick in planning my consumer reports."

A graduate in household economics of the University of Toronto, Mrs. Pope served as a tactical training officer in the Royal Canadian Navy in the late war years and then married and devoted herself to raising a family (Peter, 13, and Peggy, 11). She maintained a lively interest in consumer reports and theories and practices in household science, and recently decided to go back to college for further study. She has just completed work on her Master's Degree in nutrition, which involved special studies in a Toronto obesity clinic, and gave her "tremendous insight into human nature."

We were curious to know how she collects her consumer information. "When I get an idea for a program," she told us, "I write the manufacturer of the product or products I want to discuss, and check their comments with the University, the federal and provincial information centres, or Departments of Health and Welfare. And the research labs of the big food, drug and textile companies offer me their latest technical papers. Of course I experiment myself with as many products as I can, and check with all my friends and acquaintances to see how satisfactory they find them."

"The only difficulty with my new job," she says, "is the fact that I mustn't mention products by brand name — just by types. When I'm talking to a chemist I can easily differentiate between a heavy-duty detergent and other kinds in scientific language, but the layman, of course, would be all at sea if I tried that, so I have to find roundabout but easily understood ways of identifying various types of products. My whole aim is to get across factual information, to make the consumer aware of manufacturing and marketing problems and improvements, and to help her to get the most for her money."

CHILDREN'S MAGAZINE

clutching at known words, and chuckling at complicated jokes as they suddenly dawned. He had the glee of a porpoise, then, pouring and leaping through the strange seas."

Charles stopped reading. "That's my ideal of writing for children," he said.

Charles Winters was born and bred in Toronto. He has taught school, taught "creative dramatics" — "I'm still not quite sure what they are," and while with the Toronto Children Players he acted, sang, and wrote plays and songs both lyrics and music. Children's programs are his first love: "There is nothing more rewarding than working with children," he said.

Charles has no difficulty getting ideas for Children's Magazine. "A walk down the street is enough," he said. Still, he keeps files of stories, paragraphs, even just a new word, ripped from newspapers and magazines.

We looked inside a file of clippings marked for possible use: there were articles entitled St. Patrick and the Myths ("There never were any snakes in Ireland"). How the Eyeball Works ("We'd like to get inside an eyeball, if we can devise a technique" — nothing is too grizzly for Rod and Charles), on the Abominable Snowman ("We hope to get another CBC first before Sir Edmund Hillary beat us — getting to be a nuisance that chap, meet him everywhere"). Hot Rod Terms for Teenage Girls ("Now how on earth can we make use of that one?"), The Right School for the Right Dog, Myths about the Moon, and many others.

The other intrepid explorer, Rod Coneybeare, was born in Belleville, Ont., and educated in Toronto. He left school at 16 to be an announcer, and while working at the radio station in Guelph wrote some plays.

"We put them on air," said Rod. "But the budget was limited and I had to play several roles. That's where I started collecting my different voices."

Some years later Rod wrote a series of scripts for CBC radio called Out of this World. Again he played several roles; in fact, he played all the roles. And now on Children's Magazine he is yet again the man of many voices.

"We don't mind telling the children I have to play several roles because we haven't enough budget to hire more . . ." Rod broke off, then added thoughtfully, "Now why do you think the programs I'm in never have enough money?"

We hurried on to the next question.

"I've never written for children before," he said. In fact, his last radio series Man to Man was NOT for children. "I manipulate the puppets Rusty the Rooster and Jerome the Giraffe on The Friendly Giant on CBC-TV. I speak for them too. It's the many voices again. I wish I got paid for every role."

We mentioned the Income Tax and he dropped the subject.

"We think of our listeners in the ten to fourteen age group," Rod went on. But it is a fact that most of their mail comes from adults. "We haven't had a letter telling us to get off the air yet. I think people like the program because it's brash and breezy."

Recently Rod and Charles got together and planned 20 sketches and six interviews for the 13 spring programs.

"We want to build a road," said Charles. "You know, ride all the earth moving machines and so on. And soon we're going to the top of a Toronto 12-storey building which is being pulled down."

Other programs will include: Why People Speak, How Soap Gets Us Clean, A Trip Through a Telephone, How a Cat Purrs, Oddballs and How They Got That Way ("This is definitely not autobiographical"), How a Worm Gets Into an Apple ("They don't just bore in"), and What Are Rocks?

During the past months Rod and Charles have been to many strange places. But a letter from one of their young fans leaves them puzzled:

"Dear Mr. Winter, I am writing to tell you how much I like Children's Magazine. I listen to it every Sunday, rain or shine, in the queerest places. I think one of the queerest places was a ditch . . ."

Charles looked worried. "I wish he had explained," he said wistfully.

Dateline U.N.

This week—"The Greeks Had A Word For It." The word "Philotimo" in Greek means "self-respect." To keep this Philotimo intact is important to Greek life. This program shows how a small village in the mountains of northern Greece achieved this goal through United Nations Technical Assistance. Chryssooupolis was the site for a pilot community development project. An expert was sent to advise and help the local citizenry to help themselves. How the mission succeeded in Chryssooupolis and then inspired other villages to follow the example is illustrated today. Story narration by Gilbert Mack, is seen through the eyes of the "proedros" or leader of one of the assisted villages.

Good Life Theatre

Today - "The Tangled Web." Theme: Penalties of Lying. A woman knows she is the only witness to an accident but fails to step forward because she had been driving while her license was suspended. The boy involved in the accident dies and his mother demands vengeance, even lying and claiming she saw the accident and that the innocent man whose car hit the boy was actually at fault.

CBWT viewers will see the fifth program in the series "Morning Watch" (Baptist), a documentary which follows a young boy through his experiences at a Baptist summer camp as he discovers religion to be real and vital. Written by George Salverson. Private stations will carry "Armagh", the dramatic story of

Katherine Blake

Armagh, a Presbyterian Church home for unmarried mothers, as seen through the eyes of one young resident. Cast includes: Iris Krangle, Phyllis Malcolm-Stewart, Joe Austin, Katherine Blake, Katharine Hawtrey, Chris Wiggins, Nancy Lewis and Joan Maroney.

Country Calendar

Seventh program in the series "Meet Your Agricultural Representative." This week—an interview with Art Domes, "ag. rep." from Kindersley, Sask. Gren Bates, producer. (CBC Winnipeg production).

Junior Magazine

Doug Maxwell introduces a full-length film, "Corky and the White Shadow." Corky is a 10-year-old daughter of a sheriff in a wild and woolly town of the 19th century era. White Shadow is the name of her pet dog. The film illustrates Corky's adventures, particularly when she helps her father track down the Durango Kid, a bank robber. (Saturday on CBWT).

Citizens' Forum

Today—viewers will see the fourth program in the series "Behind the Platitudes," Canadians Enjoy a Free and Responsible Press. Taking part in the panel discussion are: George V. Ferguson, editor of the Montreal Star; Douglas Fisher, MP for Port Arthur; Charles Lynch of the Southam News Service and Ross McLean, freelance Montreal journalist.

CBWT—Radio-Canada Vous Invite

Yoland Guérard's guests this week—singer Yolanda Lisi, The Rhythmics (vocal quartet), trumpeter Marcel Levesque, and Spanky, a trained chimp. Choreography by Michel Conte and musical direction by Art Morrow. (CBC Montreal film.)

ED SULLIVAN, with Russia's renowned clown Popov (on tightrope) and the American clown Emmett Kelly, both of whom will appear on Ed Sullivan's "Circus Stars of the World" this Sunday on CBC-TV.

CBWT—Premiere

This week—"A cause de ça" by Adrien Bovy, adapted by Jean Petrik. The play is about a young rich girl who prefers to earn her own way in life. Starring Suzanne Dufresne. (CFCM-TV, Quebec City, film).

Documentary '60

Today—"The Power of Matter." Part two of this two-part series will be devoted to Canadian development and achievement in the field of nuclear energy and the applications of these accomplishments to the nation's future power requirements.

Lassie

Lassie shows strange hostility toward a litter of setter puppies being cared for by Timmy, who, piqued by her unusual attitude, trundles them off to the north pasture of the family farm where they are endangered by a working hay mower. Jon Provost stars as Timmy, with June Lockhart and Hugh Reilly as his parents. Cast also includes Ed Barker, Eddie Waller and Arthur Space.

Walt Disney Presents

Today—"Gus Tomlin is Dead." Attorney Elfego Baca, deputized by the sheriff of Santa Fe, is sent to arrest a fugitive named Gus Tomlin. Tomlin himself wants Baca to find him before Ben Palmer, whose father Tomlin murdered, does. Arriving in Granite, Baca is shown Tomlin's grave and told that the man died seven years ago. Later, he meets the Minter family and discovers their strange connection with Tomlin.

BOOK REVIEW. Kildare Dobbs will tell viewers about some of the books he's been reading, they too might find enjoyable.

THE LADY'S MAID. By Katherine Mansfield. When Anna Cameron presented a story in January—MISS BRILL, also by Katherine Mansfield, she received a great many letters from viewers who were delighted with her performance. And so today, Anna will present THE LADY'S MAID, which she hopes will be just as popular.

P.M. Party

Audience participation program for women with emcee Alan Millar, singers Donna Miller and Allan Blye, Rudy Toth and his orchestra, Rex Loring, and Daniel the Spaniel. Today, Lotta Dempsey, columnist of the Toronto Daily Star pays a return visit to the show.

Fibber McGee and Molly

Today—"The Poem." McGee wins community plaudits and a cash award for a poem he claims to have written.

Let's Look

Let's Look—at brooks. The meanderings and methods of brooks are investigated on today's program, and viewers will get a brief look at life to be discovered along the banks of a brook.

Science All Around Us

With host Lorne McLachlan. Today's program is about fish, particularly Canadian game fish, trout and bass.

Youth '60

Spring is in the air and Tommy Common, Dennis Crothall and Penny Williams introduce some guests who will make spring seem even nearer. One is John Fisher, the Voice of Canada, who is with the Canadian Tourist Association. He will talk about the attractions in Canada from coast to coast for the traveller and vacationer. Fashion—models will show new spring fashions, sportswear, coats and suits, casual dresses and formal wear. Joan McCormack of a Toronto model agency will do the commentary. Square dance—the Jack and Jill promenaders, a 'teenage group who won the square dance championship on Country Hoedown will dance several numbers.

Quick Draw McGraw

Today—"Pop's Nature Pup." Doggie Daddy takes a hand in Augie Doggie's education when the pup spends time talking to an owl instead of doing his homework, but learns the hard way that there are more things to life than book learning. The pup builds a fire when Doggie Daddy can't; he talks duck talk to a duck; and he engages a bear to drive Daddy's car home when Daddy's unhappy encounter with a skunk renders him unfit for civilized pursuits.

Don Messer Jubilee

This program will commemorate the 26th anniversary of Don Messer

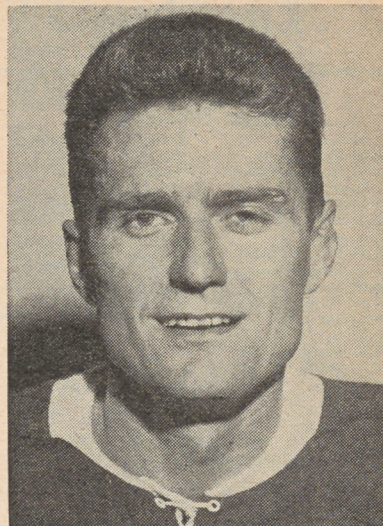

Meet Your N.H.L. Stars

Thirteenth in a new series of articles on N.H.L. stars to be seen in action on Saturday night telecasts over the CBC-TV network.

13. ALLAN STANLEY

The main reason for the Toronto Maple Leafs' jump from fourth to second place this year is the much improved play of veteran defenceman Allan Stanley.

Stanley, the 34-year-old product of Timmins, Ontario, has played and the Islanders' first radio broadcast from St. John, N.B. Today's guests are the Farnell Sisters. The Buchta Dancers will dance to Soldiers Joy and Rock Valley, two of the numbers played on the first broadcast. Charlie Chamberlain sings Lonesome Valley Sally and joins the Farnell Sisters for End Of A Perfect Day. The Islanders play Don Messer's Breakdown and Flowers of Edinburgh. Edna Farnell sings the Auctioneer's Song, and Waldo Munro plays piano solos Piano Roll Blues and The Johnson Rag. Marg Osburne will not be seen during the next few weeks. She will be busy preparing for a "blessed event".

Danny Thomas Show

Nightclub entertainer Danny Williams (Danny Thomas) helps his son Rusty (Rusty Hamer) build a doghouse as a Boy Scout project. Subsequently, Danny discovers that no respectable dog will go near the thing. Marjorie Lord co-stars as Danny's wife, Kathy. Angela Cartwright portrays their daughter, Linda.

Music '60

Presents the Jack Kane Hour. Kane's guests will be the new jazz group, Lambert, Hendricks and Ross; flamenco guitarist Carlos Montoya, and Canadian singer Annabelle Adams. The Music Makers will play One O'Clock Jump and Strings Hoedown. Lambert, Hendricks and Ross will play Count Basie's original arrangement of One O'Clock Jump and a number by Hendricks entitled Cloudburst. Miss Adams, from London, Ont., will sing Adelaide's Lament from Guys and Dolls.

with four of the six teams in the National League, missing only Montreal and Detroit, but is having his most successful season with this year's youthful Toronto club.

In seventy games last year Stanley scored only one goal, whereas by the sixtieth game of this year, he had found the net eleven times. This total made him the highest scoring defenceman in the entire League and earned him second team status on the first-half All-Star team.

Stanley's professional career began at Providence in 1946. In 1948 he was brought up to the New York Rangers and played for that club until 1952-53, when he was demoted to Vancouver. Never a favourite with the Ranger fans (they called him a figure skater), he was traded to Chicago in 1954-55 and had one of the best seasons, scoring ten goals. Two years later, he went to Boston and after another two years was traded to Toronto in 1958-59 for Jim Morrison. Still not over-rugged, Stanley's steady play balances a Toronto defence which also features such tough young competitors as Bobby Baun and Carl Brewer.

The 6' 2", 187 lb. Stanley, like "Bucko" MacDonald, another former Leaf great, has political aspirations and hopes to run for parliament after his playing days are over. — Dennis O'Neill.

REX HARRISON

makes one of his rare TV appearances Tuesday night in Ferenc Molnar's comedy, "Dear Arthur," on Ford Startime. He plays the role of an international high-society rogue who creates a non-existent husband for his wealthy daughter on the French Riviera.

Mantovani

Mantovani plays music from around the world. Guests today will be John Hanson, The Tiller Girls, and the Band of Her Majesty's Welsh Guards.

CBWT—Mary Liz Show

Spring fashions in a spring setting are featured today, as our cameras move out to the Conservatory at Assiniboine Park to see both the colourful display of plants and flowers, and the exotic stylings of designers from fashion centres of the world. Mrs. Merle Parker is our style guide, Jim Perie provides the musical background, and Bill Gray shows us some of the special preparations for Easter flowers and plants in the Conservatory.

Susie

Today—"Havana or Bust." Peter Sands flies to Havana for a convention leaving Susie, who is aching for a Cuban week-end, in charge of the office. A few thousand jelly beans get into the act but Susie finally manages to join the Cuba-bound conga line.

Friendly Giant

Friendly's book today is "In The Forest," about the various animals who live in the woods.

Maggie Muggins

Fitzgerald's latest invention, the flying plate, is tested by Fitzgerald and Reuben. When the plate breaks, Reuben does a parachute jump and lands on The Milky Way, where he meets the Milkman who runs a milk bar. Reuben's dilemma is how to get back to earth.

Sportstime

With host Doug Maxwell. In this show, videotaped at the Tam O'Shanter Club, Doug will explain the basic rules of bowling, and a group of children will demonstrate the game.

CBWT—Junior Hi-Lites

Amateur talent show for children in Junior High grades 7, 8, and 9. Don Browne - Wilkinson, producer. CBC Winnipeg production.

Ford Startime

An adaptation of the classic Ferenc Molnar comedy "Dear Arthur" starring Rex Harrison — in one of his infrequent TV roles—as an international high-society rogue who creates a non-existent husband, Arthur, for his wealthy daughter on the French Riviera.

SUNDAY TV NOTES

Father Knows Best

When the Andersons receive a mysterious gift of $500 from a man who was once the school janitor, each member of the family tries to remember who might have performed the kindness for which the old man is so grateful. Robert Young and Jane Wyatt co-star as Jim and Margaret Anderson. Featured in the cast as their children are Elinor Donahue, Billy Gray and Lauren Chapin. Franz Roehn portrays the former janitor.

Joan Fairfax Show

Singing star Joan Fairfax, with the Alan Lund Dancers, and orchestra conducted by Samuel Hershoren. Paying tribute to "the dance", tonight's show welcomes Jack Duffy and the Taylor Twins as Joan's guests.

Ed Sullivan Show

Today—Ed Sullivan presents "Circus Stars of the World," a special one-hour program highlighting great international circus talent. Using the Cirque d'Hiver as a springboard, Sullivan will present a cavalcade of the outstanding international circus acts which have appeared on "The Ed Sullivan Show" during the past twelve years. One of the highlights of the program will be the taped appearances of the great American clown, Emmett Kelly, and his Russian counterpart, Popov, with a commentary by Sullivan on the differing techniques of clowns in the two countries.

G.M. Presents

"Ordeal by Poison," an original teleplay by Tod Rhode starring Jack Creley, Ted Follows and Dawn Greenhalgh. When young Charles Wingate arrives in a small Ottawa Valley town in 1912 to take over his late uncle's law practice, he and his wife Ann are horrified to discover they are marked as the next victims of a murderer. After a dinner date with widowed Col. Garth, an eccentric rival lawyer who dabbles in horticultural experiments involving arsenic, Charles is suddenly stricken with an attack of "acute appendicitis," an attack similar to the one which caused the death of his uncle. Suspecting the symptoms to be arsenic poisoning, the local doctor calls in the provincial police. Inspector Purvis, concluding that Garth is the source, points out that absolute proof is needed. Charles and Ann are asked to bait the trap in a continuing "ordeal by poison."

Twentieth Century

Presents "Patton and The Third Army," the story of General George S. Patton, Jr.—"Old Blood and Guts," as he was called—and the American 3rd Army. General Patton's career is followed from the North African campaign of 1942 through Sicily and the ground war in Western Europe where his 3rd Army blazed a remarkable path toward victory over Germany. General S. L. A. Marshall will appear on camera to provide an eyewitness description of General Patton.

CBWT—Fighting Words

Moderator Nathan Cohen with guest panelists Dr. Watson Kirkconnell, president of Acadia University at Wolfville, Nova Scotia; E. B. Jolliffe, Toronto lawyer; Mrs. Doris Dodds, president of the Ethical Education Association of Toronto, and Mme. Solange Rolland, Montreal writer and commentator. (This program was seen "live" last Sunday on private stations).

A VISIT WITH THE HARLANDERS. A specially prepared film will be presented today in which viewers will see the beautiful home of a family of artists. The Harlanders—a family of four, came to Canada from Bavaria, shortly after the war, and settled in a century-old home near Whitby, Ontario. Here they set up their pottery, designing and making beautiful pieces in their workshop. Some of their craftsmanship is reflected in the decoration of their own home. Our film will show viewers the Harlanders at work, and we'll also see some of their work in the house. They'll be along at the studio to tell us about their work there.

National School Telecast

Part One: "Current Events." The emphasis on each program will be both the historical background and the current significance of the event chosen. Part Two: Fourth program in the "Where History Was Made" series is entitled "Fortress Of The North." Five miles distant from the present-day Churchill, Manitoba, in bleak and barren country, stand the stone remains of one of Canada's forgotten forts—Fort Prince of Wales. The story of its founding, building, and tragic ending will be told through maps and pictures, studio scenes, and film taken at the site of the fort. Script writer for this program is David Clee of Toronto Teacher's College.

CBWT—Ladies First

Today's guest with Jose Poniera and Ken Dunstan is vocalist Mata Pascoe. Ernest Mutimer, producer.

Our Miss Brooks

Today—"The Egg." Madison High is thrown into a turmoil when Os-good Conklin decides to take a series of pictures of the actual hatching of an egg, for an amateur photography contest. Walter Denton substitutes an egg-like stone for the real egg as Conklin awaits the moment of hatching.

Friendly Giant

Today's program will tell all about trains and their whistles. Friendly reads a book entitled "Whistle for a Train", and Rusty and Jerome talk about different kinds of whistles. Rusty has several samples in his bag.

Huckleberry Hound

Today — "Lend-Lease Meece." A new cat, Charlie, moves in next door to Jinks and Pixie and Dixie and finds life dull because there are no mice in his new home. Jinks obligingly lends Pixie and Dixie to Charlie and then becomes lonely and bored himself and the two cats turn on each other much to the delight of the mischievous mice.

Art In Action

A technical survey of art movements and what they have taught us, with Professor George Swinton. Private stations will carry the fourth program of the series—ABSTRACTION; the retreat from the object to "pure" form. CBWT carries the fifth program in the series—THE NEW

On radio

"Jealousy"

A play by SACHA GUITRY,
Sunday on CBC Stage

FOR half a century Sacha Guitry typified the Gallic "great lover" — sophisticated, charming, nonchalant, hungry-eyed, theatrical. From the time he was 16 until he died in 1957 at 72 he wrote 115 plays and 29 movie scenarios, most of them with himself in mind for the fat parts, and all of them about love, for, like most Gauls, he was an authority on the subject. He once said that "the test of an actor is whether he can make every woman in the audience fall in love with him." Guitry succeeded by just being himself on the stage, and women by the score swooned at the sound of his boudoir voice. He married five of them, all actresses. Four of his marriages ended in divorce, but the fifth, at 64 to a woman 38 years his junior, was happy.

One of the most amusing — and revealing — of his plays is Jealousy, with its gently witty and sardonic dialogue. Toronto actor-writer Ivor Barry has translated and adapted it for this Sunday night's CBC Stage production on radio.

It concerns the guilty habit some people have of accusing others of their own shortcomings — in this case, infidelity. But nothing is

REALISM AND NATURALISM:
Outer appearance versus inner reality.
R.C.M.P.

Today — "Tourist Bait." Bank robbers, armed with revolvers, a sawed-off shot-gun and a machine gun, are looting the vault of a Shamattawa bank when Constable Frank Scott walks in on them.

The Seventh Wave

Final program in the series "The Road To Adjustment." Today — "The Problem of Canada's Atlantic Fishing Industry." Filmed documentary utilizes commentaries and interviews to show two-fold nature of the problem, and to show how a group of fishermen at Port Bickerton, N.S., has gone a long way toward a solution. Producer of this series is Murray Creed.

more irritating than being accused of something it never occurred to you to do, and the young wife in Jealousy is righteously indignant. Her husband, Albert, fresh from the arms of his mistress, is so consumed with guilt that he imagines his wife is having an affair with a novelist, a smoothie who is too fond of other men's wives to consider marriage himself.

Guitry, master of the comedy of manners, saves each of his characters from brittleness by giving them very human little failings. Albert would be stuffy if it were not for the fact that the poor man has varicose veins and yearns for a French medal — but someone at the Ministry is against him, he fears. L'amour triumphs, but we won't tell you who has the last laugh.

Guitry was not only author and actor, but producer and theatre manager as well in his 67-year stage and film career. Sacha was not his real name, of course. But with a mundane handle like Alexandre Pierre Georges Guitry he can't be blamed for adopting something a little more theatrical. He was born in St. Petersburg (now Leningrad), where his father, the noted French actor Lucien Guitry, was appearing on contract to Russia's imperial theatres. At the age of five young Sacha made his stage debut before the Czar in a pantomime written by his father and Russian actor Davidoff. He spent his summers in France, his winters in Russia, and said he finished his education without having ever begun it, for he attended at least 12 schools, an irrepressible lad with greasepaint in his veins.

At 16 his first play, a one-acter called Le Page, was turned into an opera bouffe with favourable reviews. He continued acting and in 1905, at 20, he wrote his first big success, a comedy titled Nono. For many years Guitry wrote popular plays with roles for himself, his first wife, Yvonne Printemps, and his father, and the three Guitrys were the rage of Paris. Their partnership ended with the elder Guitry's death in 1925. Sacha Guitry continued to write and act who'll tell us how they decided on adoption, how they went about making inquiries and how they felt as they became involved in the formalities of adopting a baby. Phyllis Burns, Director of Welfare Services, Canadian Welfare Council, will talk to Fred Davis about the number of adoptions in Canada each year—the number placed through social agencies—differences between provincial procedure—the problems in adoption which still have to be solved.

BUYING A HOUSE. Viewers contemplating buying a house will be one step ahead after listening to today's suggestions from Mrs. Margaret Cummings. Mrs. Cummings is a real estate agent, so can usefully point out the do's and don'ts we should all try to remember.

CBC Film Playhouse

First program in a new series. Today—"Better Mousetraps." A brilliant but impractical electrical engineer finds that his talent for inventing clever gadgets leads to a chaotic household crisis—especially after the arrival of a baby. Douglas Fairbanks Jr. stars.

CBWT—Mary Liz Show

Father Michael Yurkiwsky is today's representative on the religious series, describing the faith and sacraments of the Ukrainian Greek Orthodox Church. Mrs. Mat Gauer has a new recipe to share with viewers, particularly those who face the perennial problem "what's for dessert"? Among many groups involved in community service are the Jaycettes, wives of members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and today we learn of their latest project.

The Millionaire

Today — "Elizabeth Tander." A plain young woman who is resigned to a dull life with a demanding mother buys a new wardrobe and leaves for Hollywood after a visit from Michael Anthony. She falls in love with a hotel desk clerk but becomes suspicious when he talks about needing big money for a project he is working on.

See For Yourself

Today's program is all about the television camera, and the differences between TV and film cameras.

This Living World

Different types of animals and birds build different types of "homes" in the spring. In this program, viewers will see some of them.

Roy Rogers

Today — "The Young Defenders." Roy and Dale send a hermit to locate a fur trapper whose children are locked in a cabin. Two renegade trappers capture Rogers and threaten to burn down the cabin unless he tells them where the missing trapper's fur cache is located.

Talent Caravan

George Murray and Ricky Hyslop and his orchestra present amateur and semi-professional talent from the stage of the International Cinema, Vancouver. Today's contestants will include: Penny Gaston, local musical comedy performer; Joni Moore and The Chimers—a rock and roll group comprising Joni Moore, Wayne Irvin, Gary Taylor, Alex Leitch, Bari Walker and Bob Legare; the teen-age Tap Trio of Donna Frame and Wayne and Jack Gray; the vocal quartet The Four Winds (John Morris, Robert Morris, Brian Griffiths and Brian Gibson); 18-year-old pop vocalist Sandi Loranger, and 14-year-old concert pianist Andrea Kalanj.

form an array is done mainly to increase the directional characteristics of the antenna system. This increased directivity improves the gain of the system slightly, but it is not doubled, as might be thought).

A close relative of the Yagi antenna is the All-Channel antenna. This usually looks like a combination of elements of different shapes and sizes which appear to have been fastened together almost at random. The performance of this type of antenna is generally poorer than that obtained from a comparable antenna designed for use on one specific channel. It is useful in Class A or B signal areas, but it is not suitable for fringe area reception.

It should be noted that while the Yagi type of antenna seems to be the most popular, it is by no means the only one suitable for TV reception. There are several other types which because of their cost and size are seldom used.

A feeling has grown up that because radio stations can be picked up easily with little or no antenna, that the antenna is therefore of secondary importance. Actually, the antenna is the only means of providing a signal to a receiver, and in fringe areas a good antenna is really as important as a good receiver.

It should always be remembered, however, that the antenna system (including the special wire connecting it to the receiver) is but one link in the chain bringing programs to your living room. A radio or television station does its utmost to provide as much signal to as large an area as possible, but from this point on it is up to the antenna, the receiver, and the whims of Mother Nature to determine what your reception quality will be. — R. R. Dutka.

N.H.L. SEMI-FINALS

If a deciding game in the N.H.L. playoffs is scheduled this week it will be carried on CBC-TV, and will pre-empt some of the regular programs listed and described in this issue of CBC Times.

in hit plays, musicals and then films that were popular for their sparkling dialogue and wit—sound—ing simple but cleverly timed.

Having conquered the Continent he spread his charm over Britain and the United States, and not always as the romantic boulevardier and humourist. Occasionally he sounded a serious note, as in Pas-tEUR, a play about the French scientist, which many critics feel is his crowning achievement. He was a hasty perfectionist. People who watched him work as actor and director were amazed at the way he could combine speed — he always seemed to be racing against time—with almost finicky attention to small details.

After the Second World War Guitry was arrested, accused of sympathizing with the enemy during the occupation of France, was imprisoned for two months, and then cleared of all charges against him. He described his experiences during and after the war with humour and bitterness in two books: Four Years of Occupation and Sixty Days in Prison. Until he was 70 his years hung lightly on his elegantly clad shoulders, and he continued to be one of France's most colourful showbusiness personalities — vital, original, still romantic.

The last film he directed was Lovers and Thieves in the spring of 1957, a few weeks before he died at 72. He felt that "to abandon your play to another actor was like giving your child to an orphanage," but he was so weak from neuritis and paralysis that he was forced to give his last acting plum to another. He insisted on directing, wrapped in a red plaid blanket in a wheelchair. One admirer recalls him as thin and wasted but — incredibly — looking more alive than anyone else on the set. Before shooting began he called the cast together and said: "You have heard that I am dying. Well, it's true. All the more reason to keep laughing while one still can, eh?" And despite his suffering he was his old witty self through the four-week production. When it was over he sat huddled in his chair for a few minutes, eyes closed, grey-faced. Then he slowly raised his head, adjusted his black fedora jauntily, and said: "Well done, children. And now, if you will excuse me, I'm late for an assignation." A short time after he died in his art-filled home on the Paris Left Bank, near the Eiffel Tower. Just before his final curtain he murmured: "I must not miss my cue."

Sacha Guitry's prime purpose in his plays and films was to amuse. While other writers pondered and sweated in their efforts to get a message across, Guitry set his audience laughing at themselves. One of the secrets of his success is the fact that he could take a slight situation and mould it into a sharply-defined vignette of life in which each of his audience saw himself mirrored. While he did not invent love, he certainly showed that it can move mountains, and that it is undoubtedly here to stay.

Science is indeed a remarkable and productive way of thinking. Since the man who contributes to scientific knowledge today does so by standing on the shoulders of his scientific predecessor of yesterday there is some excuse for the assertion that only in science has progress any definite meaning. Just the same, although a scientist may accumulate knowledge, wisdom is as difficult for him to acquire as for anyone else. — Magnus Pyke, F.R.S.E., on BBC.

with many people, it can be very hard to meet friends, and it is easy to become desperately lonely. The University Settlement Recreation Centre, is one of the many settlement houses across the country, where newcomers find a warm welcome, a place where through almost any kind of activity you can think of, they meet other people with similar interests. In our visit, we'll see some of the groups at work and see how they are helped to settle into the community.

P.M. Party

With emcee Alan Millar, singers Donna Miller and Allan Blye, Rudy Toth and his orchestra, Rex Loring, and Daniel the Spaniel. Today—Alan Millar and the entire cast present a new skit.

This Is Alice

Today — "Callahan." Alice burns the grass on her front lawn and needs $50 to have it replanted. She learns that an Irish immigrant also needs $50 to send his fiancée in the old country. Alice induces the Irishman to win $100 by fighting the feared "Siberian Assassin." When the immigrant knocks out the professional fighter he is talked into challenging the champion and almost loses his fiancée as a result.

Pictures With Woofers

Woofers has the hiccups and Patty (Donna Miller) tries different remedies from her "book of cures." Films are "Magic Wings," a graphic story; a Captain Kangaroo film and Walt Disney's "Rescue Dog."

Tidewater Tramp

Final program of the series for this season. Today — "The Challenge." Is about Peter's yen to go to new ports and see the world. When the Flying Kestrel saves the lives of two men washed ashore, Peter faces the fact that he has forgotten an important part of his seamanship.

CBWT—Hobby Corner

Host Glynne Morris will discuss woodworking projects with today's special guest, Jack Lockett.

Country Hoedown

Country music with Gordie Tapp, King Ganam, the Hames Sisters, Tommy Hunter, Tommy Common and the Singing Swinging Eight.

Four Just Men

Today — "Marie." Tim Collier searches the back streets of Paris for a young girl who has threatened to commit suicide. Cast:

Tim Collier	Dan Dailey
Nicole	Honor Blackman
Marie	Perilla Neilson
Dr. Fawcill	Alec Mango

Flying Doctor

Today — "Blood Donor." The Flying Doctor is called in on the case when a young woman is injured after falling down a mine shaft. The doctor finds that the girl urgently requires a transfusion but that the plasma he has is not the right type. The only available donor is in jail and he pulls a gun on Dr. Graham as he is being taken to the girl. The convict demands that Graham and Charlie divert the aircraft's course so that he may escape.

CBWT—Music Hall

Michelle Tisseyre's guests this week are singer Pierre Dudan, The Robys (contortionists), Gaby Laplante (mimic), La Chanson Canadienne with Pierre Paquette, Claire Duval, Margot Lefebvre, and Yoland Guérard. (CBC Montreal film.)

Junior Magazine

Doug Maxwell introduces a full-length film, "Corky and the White Shadow." (See Sunday TV notes).

CBWT—Sports—Mobile

The best eight of Winnipeg's 16,000 bowlers have been selected to compete in a special eight-week tournament to be televised by CBWT from the Saratoga Bowling Alleys. There will be no handicaps and women will compete against men on an equal basis. George Kent, producer.

Return To The Arctic

Thom Benson interviews Arctic expert Doug Wilkinson. Wilkinson's reminiscences of his many years in the Arctic are illustrated by some fascinating film slides and photographs, highlights include film of the birth of an Eskimo baby in an igloo; Eskimos setting out and hunting Narwhal Whales—an exciting change in their lives, usually occupied by the day-to-day grind of hunting seals for food. The illustrations answer some of the questions put to Wilkinson—why do men go north, what draws them to the bleak and lonely land? Wilkinson has dedicated the past 15

MUSIC ON RADIO

by BOYD NEEL

THIS is an amazingly varied week and, glancing through the programs, one is reminded once again of the astonishing amount of good music that can be heard in one week on the CBC.

Hungarian composers are very much to the fore and Kodaly, Bartok and Kadosa can all be heard at various times. The Kodaly work is the set of variations he wrote on the Hungarian folk song The Peacock and dates from 1939. The work was commissioned for the fiftieth anniversary of the Concertgebouw Orchestra in Amsterdam and has remained in the repertoire of most orchestras ever since. In this work Kodaly was able to solve one of the old problems of Hungarian music—i.e. the blending of the national style with western techniques. The tune on which the Variations are based is a Magyar folk song having a very oriental tinge to it. The whole work is one of the finest orchestral pieces of our time. It will be heard on the New York Philharmonic broadcast of March 19.

Of Bartok it is scarcely necessary to write, so famous is his name in the musical world, but it is interesting to note how the two great Hungarians, while working simultaneously, evolved very definite individualistic styles both based very securely on the folk music of their country. The same New York Philharmonic broadcast will feature the suite from his opera The Miraculous Mandarin, and that of the following week (March 26) features Rudolph Serkin in a performance of his Piano Concerto No. 1.

The third Hungarian composer, Pal Kadosa, has not become nearly so well known outside his own country and he is a considerably younger man than the other two and has been much influenced by both of them. He was for many years a piano professor at the Fodor School in Budapest and he was the founder of a group of young progressive musicians known as the Modern Magyar Music Society, which was eventually incorporated into the Union for New Hungarian Music founded in 1911 by Bartok and Kodaly. Kadosa became the general secretary of the organization. Kadosa's work is also very much influenced by Hungarian folk music, but, as in the case of his two senior compatriots, he has managed to evolve an individual style while using the folk music as his background. Kadosa's Quintet for Wind Instruments, Op. 49A, will be played by the CBC Woodwind Ensemble Sunday afternoon on CBK and CBX, Tuesday night on CBW.

On Friday evening we can hear the 3rd Symphony of Walter Piston at the CBC Symphony concert. Piston is of Italian descent, his grandfather being Antonio Pistone who settled in Maine during the nineteenth century. Probably as to seem more American, the final "e" was dropped from the family name

The Contemplative Life

A 60-minute exploration of the realm of silence in the modern world

THE life of the contemplative is one of hardship and sacrifice which are made as nothing by serenity and joy.

During this season of Lent, CBC radio's Project '60 (Tuesday night) will present a special program dedicated to the contemplative way of life. This hour-long study of a world within a world is in two parts.

First, Project '60 goes to two contemplative orders in Canada: the Benedictine monks of St. Benoit du Lac, Quebec, and the Anglican Sisters of St. John the Divine in Toronto.

"We dwell on the 'why?' of the contemplative life rather than the 'how?'," said producer Rupert Caplan, a frequent retreatant at the Benedictine monastery. "Our purpose is to explore the realm of Silence in a modern world where cacophony is accepted and hyperactivity encouraged."

The Contemplative Life explains both ways of life: the completely enclosed life led by such orders as the Carmelites, and the mixed way of life where contemplation leads to works of mercy.

The need to live away from the world, at least temporarily, is felt by many, and a Montreal businessman, Murray Ballantyne, tells why he goes on retreats. A young Toronto man discusses why he left the monastery after a year-and-a-half there, and how he is adjusting to his life in the world again. And Montreal actress Margaret Cunningham recalls the time when her daughter left home to enter a convent.

Part 2 of The Contemplative Life is an outstanding documentary: Seclusion by Sergio Zavoli, a program giving a reproduction in English of the Italian documentary Clausura. This documentary won the Italia Prize in 1958.

The original program, Clausura, consisted of recordings made in a Carmelite convent of ceremonies

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

Fashion — Spring may be said to go to a woman's head, in the form of fancy headgear and bright new clothes, so what more appropriate on the first day of spring than an introduction to new trends in feminine fashion. Olive Dickason, no stranger to Matinee's listeners, is woman's editor of The Weekly Globe and Mail in Toronto and has received two awards from the Canadian fashion industry for her fashion reporting.

In My Opinion—Speaking of fashion, where will you find some of Canada's most fashionably-hatted women? At spring teas and annual meetings of the many women's organizations in our cities and towns. In Winnipeg, there's a sneaking suspicion that some committee women go to the teas and the meetings more to show off their fashionable hats, or to acquire increased social prestige, than to accomplish the good that their organizations attempt. A group of Winnipeg women with strong opinions on the subject discuss the motives of Canada's club women in Matinee's "In My Opinion" series.

Come Into The Garden — The first day of spring is also an appropriate time to talk about gardening although the veteran gardeners among us, including Mary Ferguson, will have been thinking about the subject while the snows blew all winter. Mrs. Ferguson, no stranger to Matinee listeners, is an expert Montreal gardener who shares some of her green-thumb secrets regularly on our program. Today in the first of a series of five talks Mrs. Ferguson reminds her listeners that styles in gardens change even as they do in dress, architecture and home decoration. Mrs. Ferguson looks after two gardens; one at her home in Westmount and the other at the family cottage in the country. They differ from each other and from the gardens she knew on the prairies, but every part of Canada, she says, offers opportunities to the garden.

Daily features . . . News commentary by Anne Francis of Ottawa, recorded music by Robert Van Dine of Ottawa, and another reading by Diana Maddox from Charlotte Bronte's "Villette", adapted for radio by Sally Creighton.

UNIVERSITY OF THE AIR

"The Greek and the Roman World." Fifth in a series of ten programs by Dr. W. G. Hardy, head of the department of classics at the University of Alberta. This week — "The Greeks as Writers and Athletes." The Greeks believed in "a sound mind in a healthy body." It did not seem strange to them that dramatist, Aeschylus, was both a writer and a soldier or that Sophocles was a "Steward of Hellas" and also a poet. In this lecture the amazing achievement of the Greeks in literature will be described, with the emphasis on its qualities and on the major types written. But the athletic festivals of the Greek were probably more important to the average Greek than the brilliance of their literature. We will also look, therefore, at their athletic ideals, at the sports they favoured, and at the records they made. For "modern" athletics began with the Greeks.

CONTEMPLATIVE LIFE

and interviews with nuns, and gave a vivid picture of the day-to-day life of an enclosed community:

"After many years of life here in the convent our spirits are very simplified" . . . "The greatest difficulty is that of obedience. Young persons today have stronger personalities and they do not have as much discipline as they had some time ago."

This production in English, made by the BBC, has the famous British actress Flora Robson speaking as Mother Sub-prioress, and Hugh Burden as the reporter. Producer Christopher Sykes has retained all the original sound effects.

The members of the cast aimed, by a minute study of the Italian recording, to reproduce in detail not only the matter but the expression and mood of the original. They succeeded so well they achieved "not so much perfect mimicry as a complete emotional identification with their parts," wrote critic David Paul.

Seclusion gives the hearer the astonishing experience and privilege of entering for a short time behind the walls of a convent and learning a little about the hardship, sacrifice, serenity and joy in the life of an enclosed nun.

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

Tea For Expectant Mothers — Jean Roe is a freelance broadcaster, housewife and mother who moved from Cornerbrook, Newfoundland, to Vancouver. When she was making hospital arrangements for the birth of her third baby in Vancouver last fall, she encountered a new method of treating prospective mothers. She tells listeners about it in this Matinee talk.

Who Is My Neighbour? — To give long-time residents of Canada an insight into making friends with newcomers from a variety of countries, Matinee is presenting a series on the customs and traditions of our new next-door neighbours. Today, Toronto broadcaster Elizabeth Cormack talks to Mrs. Sophie Butkevicius about the cultural and historical background of the people of Lithuania.

Daily features . . . News commentary by Anne Francis of Ottawa, recorded musical selections by Michael Hornyanski of Ottawa, and another reading by Diana Maddox from Charlotte Bronte's "Villette", adapted for radio by Sally Creighton.

"The Children's Crusade"

A "musical legend" by GABRIEL PIERNE, performed by children's choirs, the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir, The Toronto Symphony Orchestra, and soloists

IT WAS one of the strangest, most tragic events in history. Just imagine 50,000 children of assorted ages, conditions and backgrounds, setting out from the cities and villages of Europe for the Holy Land, to recover Jerusalem from the Turks in the name of the Cross. The year was 1212, between the Fourth and Fifth Crusades, during the pontificate of the great Innocent III. "The very children put us to shame," he wrote. "While we sleep they go forth gladly to conquer the Holy Land." It is amazing that no one stopped them. But their Crusade began in a small way which some adults could not take seriously, and by the time it had swelled to its staggering size, those who might have prevented its tragic consequences probably felt that childish innocence might succeed where force had failed.

It began when Etienne, a French shepherd boy, part fanatic, part dreamer, gathered a group of children around him, declared that he had a divine mission, and would lead his followers dry-shod through the seas to Jerusalem. His flashing eyes and fervent promises induced thousands of children to follow him. With only vague plans they set out, Etienne riding on a wagon at the head of his unarmed army. Carrying makeshift crosses and singing hymns they tramped across France, crying: "Lord Jesus, restore to us the Holy Cross." As they wound their way through the sleepy villages boys and girls stole from their houses to join them —

"no bolts, no bars, no fear of fathers or love of mothers could hold them back."

Their numbers gradually swelling to 30,000, the boys and girls straggled towards the port of Marseille, hoping to cross over to Jerusalem on the dry bed of the sea. At Marseille Etienne evidently thought better of his promises about walking across the water, and arranged for his army to embark in seven vessels. After two days at sea an overwhelming storm blew up and off St. Peter's Isle two of the ships went down with all on board. The remaining five reached Alexandria and Algiers, where the children were kidnapped by slave-dealers and sold into Egypt.

Meanwhile, in Cologne, a German child called Nicolas gathered together about 20,000 children with similar promises, and led them off to Italy. It was a harrowing trip. Many of them died from fatigue and heat, disease and starvation. Only a quarter of them reached Genoa. There the citizens, alarmed by the throngs of hollow-eyed, staggering children who had invaded their town, ordered them to leave. Some wound their way home, and others found service in Italian towns and villages. All that remains of the expedition is an after-echo in the legend of the Pied Piper of Hamelin.

SCHOOL BROADCAST

Final program of the series "Let's Sing Together." This week — "The Open Road," with the teaching song "Wanderthirst." This stirring song has a fine, fresh open-air feeling in words and music. The melody flows forward without a gap; strong simple words predominate the poetry, and the enthusiasm grows from verse to verse and finally expands into a broad surging ending for a final, convincing climax.

W-3:00 pm K-2:00 pm X-2:00 pm

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

Light Fingered Shoppers — Some interesting facts and figures about a little-known Canadian crime that's more popular than the publicity about it would lead you to believe. Jon Keiran is with the MacLean-Hunter Publishing Company; he talks with Brian Johnson, a partner in a retail sales audit system company, about prevalence and prevention of shop-lifting.

The Metre Reader — That man is around again, to read the metre. Relax, though; this isn't going to bring you a bill from the gas company. Tommy Tweed's specialty is not figures but verse; he does it with a light-hearted air.

Aspects of Nutrition — Last week, Dr. E. W. McHenry began his series of three talks about some often-misunderstood aspects of nutrition with a discussion of "fatness" and its causes and prevention. Today, he talks about the significance of research into human consumption of food fats and helps to dispel some of the confusion caused by conflicting reports of the effects of fat in our diet. Dr. McHenry is a professor of nutrition in the school of hygiene at the University of Toronto and a frequent contributor to CBC programs.

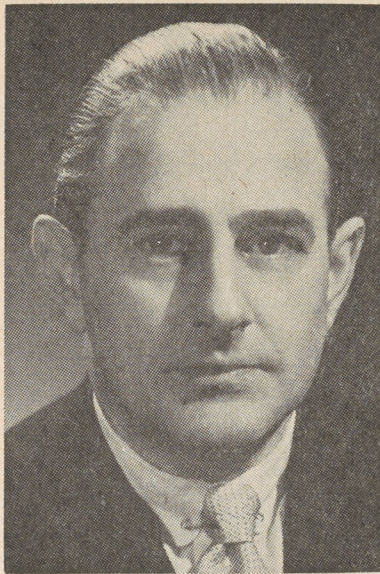

Daily features . . . News commentary by Joyce Irvine of Winnipeg, songs by Joan Emard of Ottawa, and another reading by Diana Maddox from Charlotte Bronte's "Villette", adapted for radio by Sally Creighton. W-3:33 pm K-2:33 pm X-2:33 pm

PRAIRIE TALKS

"The Last of the Beothucks." Newfoundland Harold Horwood, in the final talk in a series of four describing the native Indians of Newfoundland. (See note page 27). W-7:45 pm

CITIZENS' FORUM

This week — final program in a series entitled "Behind the Platitudes." Today — "In The News." W-8:30 pm K-8:30 pm X-8:30 pm

JOHN NEWMARK
Montreal pianist, plays works by Canadian composers Thursday afternoon on CBC Concert Hall.

EVENTIDE

MY WORD

A panel game. E. Arnot Robertson and Frank Muir challenge Nancy Spain and Dennis Norden. Jack Longland is chairman. (BBC).

W-10:30 pm K-9:30 pm X-9:30 pm

NOCTURNE

Poetry readings by J. Frank Willis, and organ music by Quentin McLean. W-11:30 pm K-11:30 pm X-11:30 pm and Walter Piston has spent most of his life in the eastern United States. Since 1926, he has been a member of the faculty at Harvard University, where he is the Naumburg Professor of Music. Famous as a teacher, as well as a composer, his four books on technical subjects are acknowledged to be classics of their kind. He has written six symphonies, several orchestral suites and a great amount of chamber music and can be considered one of the leaders of American musical thought today.

CHILDREN'S CRUSADE

The Children's Crusade was a complete failure. But the naive purity of faith which inspired it is a beautiful symbol of medieval civilization.

Moved by the poignancy of the story, French composer-conductor Gabriel Pierné set it to music in 1902. He based his libretto on the poem by Marcel Schwob, in which the shipwrecked children see a vision of Christ and are united with Him in Eternal Life. This extremely sensitive, graceful oratorio "made" Pierné. Its first Toronto performance was by the Mendelssohn Choir under Dr. A. S. Vogt in 1919, and the choir has given numerous performances since then. CBC Wednesday Night presents another on CBC radio this week. The Toronto Mendelssohn Choir will be joined by the Girls' Choirs of Bishop Strachan School and Branksome Hall, and the Boys' Choir from Grace-Church-on-the-Hill, the Toronto Symphony Orchestra under Walter Susskind, and four soloists: Hazelanne Guloien, Elizabeth Elliott, Mary Morrison and John McCollum.

The essential thing, I think, for a person of my age—seventy-two—is not to allow the brain to become atrophied. The brain is an organ of the body and should be used. I could, of course, spend my time playing dominoes or darts in the local pub, but I'm not interested in dominoes and darts. And I think that as long as a human being is alive he ought to exercise the God-given gift of brain-power. — John McNair, who graduated at 70 and is now working for his Master of Arts degree, on BBC.

NATIONAL SCHOOL BROADCAST

Second of four programs in the series "Commonwealth Roundup." This week — "Welsh Coal Miner." In this broadcast we meet the men who go down into the depths of the earth to hack out millions of tons of coal each year. We discover that miners are stubbornly cheerful men, aware of the dangers of their occupation, yet accepting them without fuss. They have come to rely on their skill and experience to help them avoid disaster — and always, down below or on the surface, they are ready to join in a song.

Part two: "Canadian Artists," will highlight the achievements of actor Douglas Rain who points out that acting is not so much glamour as it is hard and concentrated work which is constantly changing. (See story page 33).

W-3:00 pm K-2:00 pm X-2:00 pm

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

At the United Nations — An up-to-date report on activities at the United Nations as seen by Matinee's U.N. reporter, Kathleen Teltsch. Miss Teltsch is U.N. correspondent for The New York Times and has been covering the U.N. beat since the organization's inception.

Guest of the Month — The new chataleine of Rideau Hall is a tall, stately, white-haired woman who radiates dignity and grace. She was born in Montreal, the daughter of Mr. Justice Charles Archer and Mrs. Archer, and educated there at the Convent of the Sacred Heart and by private tutors. She married Georges P. Vanier, now Governor-General of Canada, in 1921. She and her husband have lived in Geneva, in London and in Paris. They have four sons and one daughter. Mme. Vanier has worked with the Red Cross and with the voluntary aid department of the St. John Ambulance, the latter during the First World War; during the Second World War she represented the Canadian Red Cross in France. Her decorations include the Knight of the Legion of Honour, Knight Grand Cross and Dame of the Order of Malta. She talks about her life, her family and her work in this interview with Charles Lynch, well-known Canadian broadcaster and columnist, Ottawa correspondent for the Southam newspapers.

Memories of Paris — Phyllis Webb, a Canadian poet now living in Vancouver, once lived for a year in the St. Germain des Pres quarter of Paris. Today, she's in a reminiscent mood and she recalls for Matinee listeners some of the sights, sounds, smells and sensations of that romantic quarter in that most romantic of cities.

Daily features . . . News commentary by Anne Francis of Ottawa, recorded musical selections by Robert Van Dine of Ottawa, and another reading by Diana Maddox from Charlotte Bronte's "Villette" adapted for radio by Sally Creighton.

POST-NEWS TALK

This week — Canadian Art to the West Indies.
W-9:20 pm K-8:20 pm X-8:20 pm

Douglas Rain On Acting

Winnipeg-born actor Douglas Rain is the subject of the first half of this week's National School Broadcast. Mr. Rain will be interviewed by actress-writer-producer Susan Fletcher in the second of four Canadian Artists programs. The other Canadian artists to be interviewed by Miss Fletcher are poet E. J. Pratt (March 18), conductor Sir Ernest MacMillan (April 1), and Eskimo carvers Kiawak and Eegeevudluk (April 8).

Miss Fletcher's interview with Mr. Rain is intended to give Grade 5 to 8 students a glimpse of a professional actor's life in Canada today.

Douglas Rain has been an actor for nearly all of his 30 years. As a boy he acted in school plays and in CBC radio dramas from Winnipeg. Later he performed with the Winnipeg Little Theatre, and the University Theatre. Following studies at the Old Vic School in England, he joined the Old Vic Theatre Company. He returned to Canada in 1953 to become part of an exciting new theatrical venture that was to become world famous — the Stratford Shakespearean Festival.

One of the most versatile of Canadian actors, Mr. Rain says that acting in Canada appeals to him because of the interesting variety of work available and because of the constant challenge to play new roles or to create new interpretations of old roles.

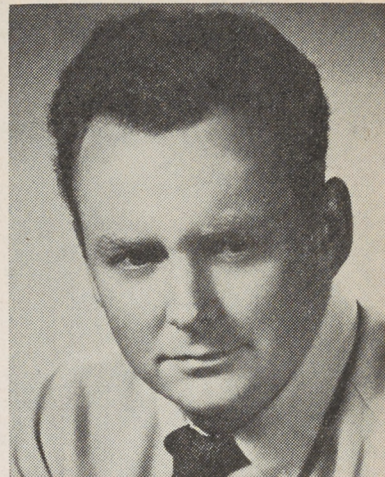

In the interview he speaks of the kinds of opportunities available in Canada today for young people interested in acting as a profession.

ANTHOLOGY

W-10:30 pm K-9:30 pm X-9:30 pm

DOUGLAS RAIN

He explains the different skills demanded by the stage, motion pictures, television and radio, and tells what the actor needs to know in order to be able to work in each of them.

Since Mr. Rain is himself known for the great range of parts he can play, it is fitting that he should mention some of the "tricks of the trade" by which an actor can make amazing changes from one role to another. He also tells something of the importance of the study of literature, history, art, and music in helping an actor "grow."

Mr. Rain will demonstrate his art with excerpts from the Shakespearean roles which won him acclaim at Stratford. He concludes his interview with some amusing anecdotes from his own recent experiences.

As soon as you've finished a film you are madly in love with it. . . .

Then, immediately it's shown to the public, you fall out of love with it, and you're trying to find the next story.—Sir Carol Reed, film director, on BBC.

Agricultural Charm — or Civilized Primitivism?

perhaps inordinate. Nevertheless, shining through her very unslicked performances, with breaths coming anywhere at all, is an image of what you hoped Mother would be, before you found out she was tone deaf and a little cruel. Marg certainly goes with apple pie and milk and Sunday evenings with hymns around the piano and other good lost things.

And then there is Charlie, who is bigger than his voice, I'm sorry to say, who plays guitar in the group, and who comes out at the end with a strange little dance that has only to be seen not to be believed.

So all this adds up to a program that is unique in Canadian television for its homeliness and agricultural charm, and it's nice to know that such dear old things are not just characters in 19th century fiction, but alive and, like Charlie, kicking.

Country Hoedown, on Fridays, is so well rehearsed and performed that it's bound to give pleasure because we always get some pleasure out of anything well done. In contrast to the Don Messer show, this one is absolutely professional and slick, and it's in this atmosphere of deadly competence that one begins to have some doubt about the worth of what is being done. Some of the music is original folk, but it's been subjected to such clever manipulation and grooming that it's about as rural as the mock pastoralism of an 18th-century court. (Significantly enough, one of the sponsors presents a deodorant for our attention). The players are technically first rate, but they seem always on the point of adopting the fixed smiles and automation of quick jazz. The square dancers, similarly, are almost a ballet in their virtuosity.

There's an almost complete masquerade in cowboy outfits of the dude variety, and in this rural fancy-dress party Gordie Tapp could only be the travelling salesman. He is a very bright performer, and his vitality is infectious, but one always feels that the creamed corn of the show is a little bland for his adult appetite.

Yet Country Hoedown has some very good features: It has a good company spirit, so that what they're doing looks like lots of fun. It has the three Hames sisters, who work very hard and very steadily in numbers which are redeemed from flatness mainly by the performers' spirit and beauty. They are appropriately dressed, with household motions light and free — pretty and yet wholesome, wholesome but yet lyric. Tommy Common, a good-looking young man, sings with good tone and understanding. Tommy Hunter, a very friendly giant, is massively relaxed about having a certain distinctive style, though his voice doesn't always do what he wants it to do. There's a certain dedicated, ethereal quality to some of his performances; with a strange smile he closes his eyes and then, opening them, looks towards Heaven. King Ganam, an excellent fiddler, looks like an ascetic knight just back from the Crusades, or perhaps a romantic gun-fighter who plays Bach and sips coffee between murders.

So in general, it's hokum, I guess, but fiendishly well done, very much of a mid-20th century version of the cult of civilized primitivism.

Country Style

• There is one show which should be given some constructive criticism—Don Messer's Jubilee. The music is excellent, but the Buchta Dancers would do well to cover up the display of legs with pantaloons. If Gordie Tapp's Hoedowners can wear them, why not the easterners? The effect is lovely with all the petticoats. Mrs. E. J., Regina.

• Critically Speaking from Winnipeg Feb. 7 has prompted me to write regarding Chester Duncan's vain attempt to analyze Don Messer's Jubilee and Country Hoedown. His remarks were an insult to our group who steadfastly view and enjoy these two shows. We do not require him to tell us what is good or bad.—G. M. A., Innisfail, Alta.

We checked the script, and our impression is that Mr. Duncan found much to admire in both programs. It is published in this issue; see page 2.

Solid Substance

• After reading the various opinions in the CBC Times, it is apparent that at times yours must be a troubled world. However, I would like to express our appreciation for Dateline U.N., with particular reference to the recent film on Africa. I am convinced that however much our tastes differ in regard to amusement nobody can doubt the immense value of this type of program to young and old alike. For half an hour we can get our minds and thoughts away from our narrow little world and not only learn something but almost feel that we had been there recently.—J. M., Saskatoon.

• A paragraph in last night's Leader Post voicing the opposition of many listeners to the presentation of Manon on TV last week has prompted me to write this letter—and I am not in the habit of writing letters to the press. I found the program wonderfully enjoyable. Not being familiar with the language, I could not, of course, follow all the words, but the music, the voices, and the whole production were so beautiful that I was left with something to remember the rest of the winter. I consider this production and Shakespeare's The Tempest the outstanding programs of the winter. Surely this type of program can be produced at least once a week, leaving the balance of the time for the rubbish which so many seem to desire.—Mrs. J. H. S., Abernethy, Sask.

Talks Reprints

• As I was unable to catch all the broadcasts of Professor Medawar's Reith Lectures on The Future of Man I would be very grateful if you would send me copies of the lectures or advise me where I may get them if they are not available in Canada.—J. L., Edmonton.

These talks have been published in six consecutive issues of the BBC publication, "The Listener." If these copies—Nov. 19-Dec. 24, inclusive—are still in print they should be available from "The Listener", 35 Marylebone High Street, London W.1, England, at 15¢ a copy. The same lectures will be published in book form around the middle of May. The publisher's representative in Canada will be the Ryerson Press, 299 Queen Street, West, Ontario. The expected price is $2.25.

• I am interested in obtaining a list of your publications. I would particularly like to obtain a copy of the series of lectures, Politics, Personality, and Public Opinion, given by Dr. Paul Fox of the University of Toronto.—Dr. I. H. L., Edmonton.

A complete list of the CBC publications currently available was published in the CBC Times recently; it will be revised and reprinted from time to time. Dr. Fox's "University of the Air" series is not being published by the CBC, but "The Spectator", Hamilton, Ontario, is publishing an abridged version of the series. These reprints are available at 5¢ each or 30¢ for the set of six.

"Canadian" Play

• I find that I can no longer refrain from objecting to the idiotic, moronic, inefficient handling of Canadian shows. No one likes to watch a play and have it end in mid-air with dozens of possible endings. If the present administration cannot write fitting endings for future plays I am available and will do the first half dozen free of charge. Everyone I have approached agree that whoever is responsible for those stupid, moronic, idiotic endings on our Canadian plays should be immediately fired, and also banned for life from any TV work. The last one was tonight, named "An Enemy of the People."—J. L., Husavick, Man.

Norwegian dramatist Henrik Ibsen is already "banned from any TV work" (although his works are not banned from TV—see page 4 of last week's CBC Times), having died in 1906.

Organ and Strings

• I should just like to place on record my sincere appreciation of the series of programs for organ and orchestra from Edmonton on Monday afternoons. I hope that when this series is finished Mr. Bancroft and Dr. Eaton may be persuaded to plan a future series. I should also like to say how well worthwhile the daily 7:55 a.m. Family Worship is—far beyond, generally speaking, any of the longer religious periods.—Rev. G. A. R., Obl.I.W., Jasper, Alta.

Not Foreign

• Mrs. R. B. of Winnipeg, in her condemnation of Manon, writes: "Why should one foreign language group monopolize one half of the average viewer's time?" She adds that she considers televising the French opera was in very bad taste. My ancestors and I have been Canadians for many years. We speak French and do not consider ourselves foreigners. I think Mrs. R. B. should realize that Canada has two official national languages. My French is no more a foreign language than is her English.—Mrs. Denise Baril, Bonnyville, Alta.

This is, of course, correct—a matter of fact, not of opinion, and most of our correspondents seem to realize it.
